Social responsibility

This tour passes through some of the most rural areas with high rates of unemployment, all accommodation used along the wildcoast region is partly owned by the communities we pass through and act as important sources of employment and skills training for the local people. All the guides are locals and the main services offered along the tour are all provided by the local communities. Supporting these initiatives helps to build sustainable communities that are educated on the importance of preserving this pristine environment. Additionally guests have the option to "green" their trip and offset their carbon footprint by adding the cost of a tree to the total price of the tour, this will go towards to planting an indigenous tree in the surrounding area. Guests will receive the GPS coordinates of the tree.
